Summer Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) Fellowships are awarded to undergraduate and graduate students to study less-commonly taught languages, including Nahuatl, Quechua, Portuguese, and Yucatec Maya

The Summer FLAS Fellowship provides up to $5,000 in tuition and fees and a $2,500 stipend to both undergraduate and graduate students for intensive language training in the U.S. or abroad

This info-session has been designed for Central New Mexico Community College (CNM) and New Mexico State University (NMSU) students as well as students from other minority-serving institutions who are eligible to apply for the Summer FLAS program managed through the University of New Mexico (UNM) Latin American and Iberian Institute

Applications for Summer 2023 FLAS competition are due February 22, 2023
